The screenshot shows the homepage of StoryMap JS. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for knight lab, Projects, Class, Device Lab, Posts, Community, and About. A large blue arrow points from the text "Devi avere un" to the "About" link. Below the navigation, the main title "StoryMap" is displayed in a large, bold, serif font, with "JS" in a smaller blue box to its right. Below the title, the tagline "Maps that tell stories." is shown in orange. A green button labeled "Make a StoryMap" is centered below the tagline. At the bottom of the page, there's a map of the Great Lakes region with city labels like Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, and Cleveland. To the right, there's a detailed inset map of the Eastern United States showing historical migration patterns with colored arrows and dates. The map includes state labels like Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, and Virginia.
